

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A print system comprising:
 - a receiver that receives an image data and a print order data, the print order data including an identification of a customer of the order;
 - a storage that stores the image data and the print order data;
 - a printer that produces a print of the image data according to the print order data;and
 - a controller that forbids the printer to produce the prints until orders from the same customer becomes a predetermined number on the basis of the identification in the print order data.
2. The print system according to claim 1, further comprising an informer that informs the customer of the forbidden print production while the printer is forbidden to produce the print for the customer.
3. A print system comprising:
 - a receiver that receives an image data and a print order data, the print order data including an identification of a customer of the order;
 - a storage that stores the image data and the print order data;
 - a printer that produces a print of the image data according to the print order data;and
 - a controller that forbids the printer to produce the print of the image data of a predetermined customer until a predetermined time on the basis of the identification in the print order data.

4. the print system according to claim 3, further comprising an informer that informs the customer of the forbidden print production while the printer is forbidden to produce the print for the customer.

5. A print system comprising:

a first receiver that receives an image data and a print order data, the print order data including an identification of a customer of the order;

a storage that stores the image data and the print order data;

a printer that produces a print of the image data according to the print order data;

a second receiver that receives a print execution, the print execution data including an identification of a customer of the print order; and a controller that forbids the printer to produce the prints until the second receiver receives the print execution data from the same customer as that of the print order data on the basis of the identification in the print order data and the print execution data.

6. The print system according to claim 5, further comprising an informer that informs the customer of the forbidden print production while the printer is forbidden to produce the print for the customer.